RENEWABLE ENERGY TAX INCENTIVES LAW

CHAPTER I

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art 1.- The present Law aims to promote investment in projects based on the use of renewable energy sources, through resource utilization such as hydraulic, geothermal, wind, solar, marine, biogas and biomass sources; as well as any other source that might be identified in the future as renewable for the generation of electricity”.

Art. 2. Promotes the use of renewable energy sources, in order to contribute to the protection of the environment, the use of renewable energy sources in the country and quality electrical supply.

Art. 3.- Natural or legal persons that once the Law goes into effect, be holders of new investments in projects for the installation of power plants for electricity generation, or in projects for the expansion of existing power plants, using for it renewable energies, as provided under Art. 1 of this Law will enjoy the following benefits and fiscal incentives, exclusively in relation to the costs and expenses of the investment corresponding to these projects:

a) During the first ten years, they will be totally exempt from payment of Import Duties on machinery, equipment, materials and supplies destined exclusively for pre-investment work and investments in construction and expansion of works at the electric power plants, including the construction or expansion of sub-stations, transmission or sub-transmission lines, necessary to transport electricity from the power plants to the transmission and/or distribution networks.

Exemption from Import Duties must be requested to the Ministry of Treasury at least fifteen days prior to the importation of the necessary machinery, equipment, materials and supplies and destined exclusively to developing the renewable energy projects, in accordance with the project documentation authorized in the certification issued by the Superintendence of Electricity and Telecommunications, which in the text of this Law may be called SIGET.

Acquisition of the following is excluded from the benefit stated above: furniture and household furnishings, as well as vehicles for the individual or collective transportation of people.

b) Income derived directly from power generation from a renewable source will be totally exempt from Income Tax payment for a period of five years, for projects above 10 megawatts (MW); and for ten years in the case of projects of 10 or less megawatts (MW); in both cases, starting from the fiscal year in which the income derived from power generation from a renewable source is generated.

c) Total exemption from payment of any type of taxes on income generated directly from the sale of "Reduced Emissions Certificates", hereon after called REC, in the framework of the Clean Development Mechanism (CDM) of the Kyoto Protocol or similar carbon markets, obtained by qualified beneficiary projects in accordance with the present Law.

To enjoy the benefits referred to above, the beneficiary must fulfill the following conditions:

- i. That the projects be duly registered and certified according to the modalities and procedures for the Clean Development Mechanism (CDM) of the Kyoto Protocol, or similar carbon markets.
- ii. That according to this law, the owners of qualified projects add in their income tax declarations a detail of the REC issued and the income obtained through their sale, stating the name of the purchasers.

- iii. To submit a certified copy of the purchase contract of the Emission Reduction Purchase Agreement (ERPA), that states the number of said reductions sold, and their selling price.
- iv. To submit a certification from the Ministry of the Environment and Natural Resources regarding the number of ERC issued.

In the case of geothermal power plants, the income tax might be reduced for a maximum period of ten years, costs and expenses related to activities involved in the process of total re-injection of the geothermal resource. This deduction may not exceed twenty per cent of the gross income generated in the previous year, and will be made through annual installments not to exceed twenty-five percent of the income from each fiscal year, until its total amortization.

For the purpose of deducting the corresponding tax credits stated in Art. 65 of the Law for the Transfer of Chattel and Performance of Services, regarding projects for the installation or expansion of power plants to generate electricity through renewable sources, the deduction referred to in that regulation might be applied when dealing with pre-investment and investment work for the construction of works necessary and part of the electricity-generating process, including investments made in real estate, whether by adherence or destination.

The tax benefits described in this article shall be granted only to the activities corresponding to projects for installation or expansion of power plants for electricity generation, benefited by this Law, that involve a new investment.

For the purposes of this Law, "new investments" refer to those that represent an acquisition, in any title, of additional assets that allow the installation of a power plant in the country, or the expansion of an existing power plant.

Said expansion may consist of the acquisition of assets for the optimization, re-potentialization and rehabilitation of previously existing power plants; in that case, the tax benefit will only apply if it is possible to identify and prove that the new investment made has resulted in additional generation of electricity, so the corresponding measuring equipment or mechanisms must be in place.

The SIGET must verify that the measuring equipment to be installed, or the measuring mechanisms identified by the interested party suffice to comply with the provision above, at the time when the project certification application is evaluated. Besides, it will have the authority to perform verification and control activities related to said equipment or mechanisms after the qualification of the project.

Natural or legal persons that enjoy any of the exemptions granted through this Law must use accounting systems that allow the identification of income, costs, and expenses related to the new investment subject to the tax benefits established in the present Law.

CHAPTER II LEGAL COMPETENCE

Art. 4. It is SIGET's task to ensure the compliance of this law, for which it may issue the necessary norms in regard to technical specifications, to characterize projects that exploit renewable energy sources for the generation of electricity, in accordance with this Law.
